Efforts For a General Uprising Are Steadily Increasing.

PROSPECTS DOLEFUL

Martial Law Has Been Declared at Bialystok and the Worst Passions Stirred Against Unfortunate Jews.

St. Petersburg, June 16.—The gravity of the general situation grows hourly. Bourses of St. Petersburg and Moscow are in a panicky condition and Social Democrats and Social Revolutionists, considering parliament to be a negligible quantity, are pushing their campaign for an armed uprising with increased vigor. Demonstrations are occurring in the streets of Moscow in favor of a general strike which the proletariat leaders are trying to precipitate. The conflict of agitation among workmen here has reached the boiling point and patrols are again in heavy force in industrial quarters. In the country the rural guards are throwing in their lot with the peasants, refusing to protect landlords.

The progress of the revolutionary propaganda in the army is seriously alarming the government, and, to add to the popular excitement, comes the massacre of the Jews at Bialystok. While reports conflict as to the immediate responsibility for the outbreak, authorities here cannot escape the responsibility for the provocative Black Hundred telegrams, which they caused to be printed throughout Russia, appealing to the worst passions of the mob against the Jews as enemies of the country. The government is undoubtedly frightened at what has occurred.

Martial law has been declared at Bialystok and troops been rushed to the scene. According to latest report Saturday hunting down of the unfortunate Jews continued unabated, accompanied by indescribable horrors. The commission dispatched to Bialystok by parliament can be relied on to make a pitiless exposure to the country of any dereliction of authorities.

IN STATE OF PANIC.

Jews at Kishineff Close and Barricade
Homes and Stores.

Odessa, June 16.—Jews at Kishineff were Saturday in a state of panic in view of reports that a Jewish massacre was threatened. They hastily closed and barricaded all their houses and stores at noon and the town was patrolled by cavalry, while pickets of infantry were stationed at strategic points.

Messages from Yelizabethgrad and Kremenichug report anti-Jewish excesses were also apprehended there Saturday.

ON WAR FOOTING.

Instructions to This Effect Have Been Issued as Precaution.

Odessa, June 16.—Instructions have been issued to the effect that all infantry regiments and reserve men in the southern and southwestern provinces are to be temporarily placed on a home war footing in view of the possibility of peasants rising against the nobles. Cossacks are to mobilize into flying brigades. It is stated similar instructions have been issued to provincial commanders in chief of central and northern Russia.

ADAMS WILL ACCEPT.

President Thinks Wisconsin Congressman Is Willing to Do This.

Washington, June 16.—President Roosevelt says that after his interview with Congressman Adams on the meat inspection bill the latter told him he would accept alterations proposed. These changes include elimination of court review proposition and a dozen other alterations. In the opinion of the president the suggested changes would make the house committee substitute as "good as the Beveridge amendment." The president adds that he is not concerned about the language of the amendment, but with the accomplishment of the object in view—"a thorough and rigid and not sham inspection."

DAMAGED BY FIRE.

Office of Oldest Morning Newspaper
In Utah Loses Much.

Salt Lake City, June 16.—The two upper floors of the building occupied by the Salt Lake Tribune, the oldest morning paper in the state, was damaged by fire early Saturday. The editorial and mechanical departments of the paper, located on three floors, a valuable library, all type-setting and stereotyping machines were destroyed. The Evening Telegram used the machinery of the Tribune, which also prints its paper. Both papers will not lose an issue, using the presses of other papers. The loss will be about $60,000.

By a Tremendous Majority House
So Decides

AS TO PANAMA CANAL

Amendment of Littauer of New York
Prevails After Burton of Ohio
Had Explained by a Map
the Two Systems.

Washington, June 16.—In committee of the whole Friday the house, by a vote of 110 to 36, voted in favor of a lock canal across the Isthmus of Panama, the amendment to this effect being presented by Representative Littauer of New York. With members of congress sitting on the short steps in the aisles of the house around the space in front of the speaker's desk, with the galleries filled, and with Mr. Burton of Ohio, pointer in hand, indicating by charts the difference between sea level and lock canal, the house presented every appearance of the class room of a great university.

Mr. Burton Thursday gave notice that when the item in the sundry bill was reached, appropriating upwards of $25,000,000, he would ask for an hour in which to present his views on the lock level type of Panama canal. He prefaced his remarks by stating that the so-called Spooner law authorizing the expenditure of $135,000,000 for the Panama canal and giving the president the right to inaugurate this movement and carry it to a successful conclusion, the type was left with the president, with certain specifications and estimates. He said later: there had been a strong agitation for a sea level canal, and he believed that the time had come when the question of type should be settled and the matter removed from the domain of controversy. Continuing he said:

"It is not fair to the president and to the executive officers of the government, who have this great enterprise in charge, to say to them, 'proceed with the canal with all the speed you may,' and with another breath to say that 'we have not yet made up our minds what kind of a canal you shall build.'"

"It is unjust to the subordinates who have gone to the isthmus to give the best years of their lives and their best efforts, to hamper and embarrass them by failing to decide this question."

In reply to a question by Mr. Williams of Mississippi Mr. Burton said that the necessary implication of the Spooner act was that a lock canal was intended.

Taking up his position in front of the maps, he called attention to the vital difference between the two types, and remarked that when the topography is considered it would be the very strongest argument for the lock level. He said thirty-four of the ablest engineers of the world were for the lock level type, and he believed this judgment should be accepted.

Mr. Bartlett of Georgia made a point against the amendment of Mr. Littauer. He insisted that the amendment was clearly new legislation, and argued the question from that premise. The chair, Mr. Watson, of Indiana, held the amendment was in order, and cries of "vote! vote!" were heard. Without further discussion the Littauer amendment was adopted.

HISTORIC BALL.

Thousands of Colored Lights Made a Most Beautiful Picture.

Louisville, June 16.—The "home coming" ball Friday night was one of the most elaborate affairs ever held in the south. At 10 o'clock the column was formed for the grand march, which was led by the chairman of the ball and by members of the floor committee. Behind them came the queen of the ball, Miss Clara Haldeman, and Daniel Boone, impersonated by W. W. Davies. Following them came the maids of honor to the queen, other maids of honor and a large number of young people. The grand march wound in and about the hall, making a beautiful picture beneath the thousands of different colored electric lights that swung from the girders and the edges of the balconies.

The march ended at the foot of the queen's throne, which she mounted, with Daniel Boone standing at her side. The maids of honor and the satellites formed a picture by grouping around the throne. The satellites then marched out to the strains of Sousa's "Sound Off" march saluted the queen and the dancing commenced.

MORE DISORDERS.

They Have Broken Out With Even Greater Fury Than Before.

St. Petersburg, June 16.—At Bialystok disorders raged Friday afternoon greater than ever. There was a constant interchange of shots between Jews on their rooftops and soldiers on the streets. A mob of peasants, armed with clubs, also took part. A committee from the lower house of parliament will at once investigate.

"DOG CONSCIENCE"

Lydson Favors "Logical Elimination," Not Capital Punishment.

Chicago, June 16.—"Logical elimination" of the criminal, not capital punishment, but simply putting out of the way a menace to society, was the plan advocated by Dr. G. Frank Lydson of the College of Physicians and Surgeons at the West Side auditorium. To this he added that the child primarily has no moral sense—is a little animal, almost a little monkey—and can, if let alone, use its toes as fingers as well as any of its ancestors. He asserted that the child for some time has a "dog conscience." It realizes there is a spanking at one side and candy at the other, and by that compass it guides its conduct. Later there is a "golden crown" and harp on one side and perdition on the other, and the child is taught to keep the same sort of "dog conscience" in some cases.

"Anyone one almost, if he or she is not a raving maniac, can get a marriage license. That is the first cause," said Dr. Lydson. "A child of parents who have nothing to give it but sickness—or, worse, some disease, some mental taint or physical deformity which warps the mind—cannot compete in the world. He cannot understand it. Suppose his parents die. There is that child left alone to make his way. He must live. Honestly, if he can, if he can understand what it means, he must live. Society does not do anything for him until he steals, and then it locks him up, and if there is anything lacking in his criminal education the penal institution perfects it.

"We have had capital punishment for years, but still crime is slowly on the increase, and so is insanity. If a man is a hopeless criminal degenerate don't punish him in hate; make him the subject of 'logical elimination.' It is better for him and vastly more for the community."

KNOWS NOTHING.

Storey Said He Heard That Bond Was an Applicant.

Austin, June 16.—Chairman Storey of the railroad commission was seen regarding the report from Dallas to the effect that J. H. Bond, traveling auditor of the Texas and Pacific railway, had been tendered the position of auditor of the commission and had accepted. Judge Storey stated that he knew that Bond had been an applicant for the position, but he knew nothing of his appointment or that the position was tendered him. Mr. Storey suggested that it might be an arrangement between Commissioners Mayfield and Colquitt. He stated that as soon as Mr. Mayfield returns the matter will be taken up.

The railway commission will take evidence at Beaumont in the case of the Sandy Creek Lumber company against the Santa Fe railway. The latter is charged with certain discriminations in lumber shipments.

GOLDAPP FLED.

Two Women Remained and Beat Man Armed With a Rifle.

Houston, June 16.—John Repsdorph appeared on a busy business thoroughfare Friday night with a Winchester, declaring he was looking for Frank Goldapp, his brother-in-law. Goldapp and two women soon appeared, but Goldapp took to flight, while the women sprang upon Repsdorph and wrenched the rifle away from him and severely pummeled him. His arrest followed. Repsdorph declares Goldapp had challenged him to fight a duel, to be fought on the street, but the latter denied the statement. The occurrence created a sensation, as the parties concerned are well known throughout the city.

GAS JET IN MOUTH.

Body of St. Louis Lady Lay in Cellar and Covered With Shawl.

St. Louis, June 16.—When George T. Kollas, a member of the house of delegates of the municipal assembly, returned to his home after a session of the house Friday night he found the body of wife in the cellar covered with a shawl and a hose attached to a gas jet clinched firmly in her teeth. Members of the family say they can assign no reason for the act.

READY TO RESUME.

For the First Time Since April 15 Whistles Were Blown.

Pittsburg, Kan., June 16.—For the first time since April 15 the whistles of the Cherokee and Pittsburg Coal Mining company's shafts in this vicinity blew for work Friday evening. Shots have been put in the mined and hoisting of coal will begin at once. Practically the same conditions obtain in all union mines in Missouri, other parts of Kansas, Indian Territory and Arkansas.

DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR.

Thirty-Four Insurance Companies Will Pay Policies in Full.

San Francisco, June 16.—Thirty-two insurance companies that rejected the suggestion of a 75 cents compromise put forward by sixty-one of their associates in the underwriters' bureau have received two additions to their number. Insurance Company of North America and the Niagara of New York announced they will pay up dollar for dollar on their losses.

Dried Fruit High.

Fresno, Cal., June 16.—Within the last few days dried fruit prices have taken a big jump. Buyers are offering 10 cents a pound for dried peaches and 15 cents for apricots. Both crops are light. These are the highest prices offered for many years.

Reclamation Act Signed.

Washington, June 16.—President signed the bill extending the reclamation act to arid lands of Texas.

SITUATION CHANGES.

This Is the Result of an Important White House Conference.

Washington, June 16.—As a result of an important conference held at the white house Friday a change has taken place in the situation which may make for a solution of the difficulty in which the house committee on agriculture found itself after the president had indicated that the committee substitute for the Beveridge amendment was wholly inadequate and unsatisfactory.

Those present were J. B. Reynolds, who assisted in making the packing house inquiry for the president; Solicitor McCabe of the department of agriculture, and Representative Adams of Mississippi.

After discussing the substitute thoroughly with Mr. Adams, the president indicated just what he wanted written into the law. Adams said he would be perfectly willing to accept the suggestions made by the president, and would work to that end in the committee.

"VERY, VERY WRONG."

So Says Chairman Wadsworth in Reference to the President.

Washington, June 16.—Chairman Wadsworth of the house committee on agriculture has made public the correspondence between President Roosevelt and himself regarding the meat inspection bill, prepared by the committee.

The president in his letter says that almost every change in the house amendment was for the worse, as compared with the senate amendment, and, in his judgment, so framed as to minimize the chance of rooting out the evils in the packing business. In his reply, Mr. Wadsworth declares the president is "very, very wrong" in his estimate of the committee's bill, and calls attention to provisions in the bill, and concludes with an expression of regret that the president should feel justified by innuendo at least, in impugning the sincerity and competency of a committee of the house of representatives.

"You have no warrant for it," says Mr. Wadsworth in closing.

DETROIT IS CHOSEN.

The Dilly Dialogues

A HUMOROUS DISCUSSION OF AFFAIRS OF THE TIME

By CAMPBELL MAC CULLOCH

Dramatic Critic of the New York Telegraph.

(Copyrighted)

Uncle George Explains the National Pastime Hazing.

"Tell me, dear uncle," asked little Dilly, plaintively, as he laid down the Evening Blatherskite, "what is hazing?"

"Ah, my dear nephew," cried Uncle George, with genuine delight, upsetting the inkwell over his new lavender trousers, which he was wearing for the first time, "hazing is the great national pastime, without which our sad lives would be a dreary waste. Had we not hazing I fear greatly that there would be little to relieve the dull monotony of our money-grubbing existence. I regret to see that the vile press is attacking this noble pastime in a scandalously vicious manner. This is to be regretted; in fact, I may call it a deplorable lack of taste. Pray, my dear boy, how are we to educate young men to navigate our ships if we omit this important item from the curriculum? Things have come to a pretty pass indeed if our potential national heroes are to be brought up to have a care for the welfare of others. I view with alarm, Dilly, this growing prejudice against hazing. Besides, my dear boy, and I will whisper this softly, it is all unbecome. What is the loss of one or two lives compared with the enjoyment of hundreds? Fudge upon such sickly sentimentality, say I."

"But had not these unfortunate youths mothers and fathers, dear uncle?" asked little Dilly.

"Possibly, possibly, Dilly, but I fail to see what that has to do with it. A mother should be glad to offer up her only son to the nation. What if his joints are twisted out of shape; his cardiac appendage somewhat bent, and his delicate neck broken, while his features are unrecognizable? It is a mere bagatelle. As to hazing, Dilly, our whole national existence is one grand hazing. Mr. Rockefeller, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Hill and those other great and good philanthropists, not forgetting Russell Sage, are widely enthusiastic advocates of hazing. Possibly they do not follow the strict rules of the game, but they haze, devotedly and continually. As a nation we are advocates of hazing. It is not so long ago since we hazed Spain, later we threw the boots into Venezuela; at present we are trying for a strangle hold on Morocco, and we would dearly love to make Turkey eat a delicate dish, of angleworms."

"Indeed you interest me, dear uncle," said little Dilly. "Are there other examples, too?"

"Many, my boy," replied Uncle George. "There is a concerted attempt upon the part of the country at large to make Senators Depew and Platt walk down a slippery plank with bare feet and their corns sticking out. It is a sad spectacle, Dilly, a sad spectacle. Just because these two poor pitiful old parties were caught climbing over a transom with a gunny sack full of swag, there is a disposition to make them hazes. I regret more than I can say that things have reached this stage. I would like to see them be permitted to rest at ease, and spend their remaining years in the quiet and seclusion of a jail, but we must not hope for too much. Just at present there seems little likelihood of such a contretemps, owing to some unforeseen nigger in the woodpile who has escaped the tracks of the judiciary express, but I have hope, Dilly, I have great hope. There is nothing like hazing, in my opinion. Nothing like it."

"What is the exact meaning of the term, uncle?" asked Dilly.

"It is somewhat obscure," replied Uncle George. "In the original conception it was, no doubt, intended to hurl the victim into a mental haze from which he recovered but slowly. In the earlier days of hazing, it was considered the height of humor to take a young man's belongings and mislay them. This pallid after awhile, and now humor does not appear until after the victim is dead, and through some indelicate reason of his own, he refuses to see the hilarity of it all. I will not rest content, Dilly, until some of the young men at Annapolis soak the garments of a fellow cadet in kerosene and use him for a binnacle light. I think that would be screamingly funny. One can almost imagine the conversation that takes place when a new cadet shows up. Cadet No. 1 gathers about him a choice collection of brainless young asses who have more time than is good for them, and who are being taken care of at the expense of the government in a manner that their fondest dreams never realized, and says:

"There's a new gazabo."

"Let's haze him," reply the others.

"What would be good?" inquires No. 1.

"We might hang him up by the thumbs until he faints," mildly suggests a younger member of the class.

"So'ty," shriek the others and drive him out. Several plans are suggested, and the class finally compromises upon feeding him 80-grain doses of strychnine while he is hitched behind a motor car making a 30-mile clip over a roadway strewn with tacks.

"That, Dilly, is a sure indication of a gay time. Imagine the shrieks of laughter it will cause. See the tears of joyous appreciation that ring out upon the night air. Picture to yourself the happy, innocent, laughing faces of these merry lads as they torture their comrade. It's a great life, Dilly. A great life. If there is one thing we excel in, it is the ability to invent odd amusements, and we breed the finest gentlemen in the world, not."

"But we are progressive, dear uncle, are we not?" asked Dilly.

"Yes, too d-d progressive," replied Uncle George. "In some things we wouldn't know progress. She ran in front of us and made signs, Messrs. Depew and Platt kindly write, while in others we are so infernally progressive that we will be forced to put fenders on ourselves to avoid running down our fellow men. It's a great life we lead here, Dilly. A marvelous life, and the greatest part of it is our hazing. We are all hazers, my boy, and we are continually hazing something or somebody. The social newspapers haze their subscribers or haze the general public into becoming subscribers. The plutocrats haze the common people, and we allow our public officials to haze us without a murmur. We are hazed by policemen and car conductors, and I'm free to confess that I believe we like it. But down at Annapolis and at West Point, Dilly, is where hazing is really brought to a fine point. What would not those old inquisitors have given to have had a cadet at the head of the torture department? Why, one good active cadet could have organized new tortures and made the old-timers at the business look like a whisper in a gale of wind."

"But are not our future naval and army officers gentlemen, dear uncle?" inquired Dilly.

"Yes, Dilly, they are gentlemen," replied Uncle George, "just as gentlemen as a Boerneen savage, and with the same appreciation."

WOMAN TREASURE HUNTER

Has Visited Wild Regions Never Before Seen by Any Prospector.

Accompanied only by an Indian half-breed, Lillian K. Malcolm, a woman mining prospector in Nevada, claims to have discovered in the foothills of the weird Funeral mountains of Death Valley a ledge of rich copper and gold ores on a ridge that towers 3,000 feet in the air. Once Lillian Malcolm, according to her story, in the San Francisco Call, crossed the Chilcotee in Alaska, alone, in her search for gold. The railroad had not been built that has since minimized the difficulties of Alaskan travel in the Chilcotee region. Miss Malcolm declares that the tour of the Funeral mountains was more hazardous than her lonely journey through the Chilcotee years ago.

"No white person had ever visited the spot where I viewed the great copper deposit until I made my way there," she said. "I have never before seen such ruggedness in the mountains as the Funeral range presents. I have been a prospector ten years, and have passed much of my time in the mountains of Alaska, Colorado and other places where there are mines. The Funeral range is the worst of any. I made up my mind that I would search for gold and copper in the foothills of the Funeral mountains. I was compelled to cross the range to get where I wished to go. I had no fear, but there were moments when, in climbing, I did not dare to look back, but only kept right on."

"There were many places where a misstep meant sure death. All there was to do was to go ahead. Once started in, there was no way to stop without confessing defeat. Finally, I found what I was looking for. At first I could hardly believe my eyes. I had reached a point about 25 miles from the lines of the Clark road and 16 miles from the line of the Borax Smith road, when the ledge loomed up immensely."

"I was happy. I have studied mineralogy, geology and other lines leading to mining, and I have done assessment work with my own hands in a shaft 60 feet deep. In short, my experience has been such that I believe that I am competent to know whether my mineral discoveries are valuable."

"The ledge stands up clearly from 50 to 75 feet, with both gold and copper in it—but more copper than gold. There may be millions there in easy reach—a quantity that I believe is almost beyond ordinary computation. If I am not mistaken, the discovery is valuable for its richness, and also because it opens up knowledge of an entirely new copper belt in the Death Valley."

"Picturesqueness is added to Miss Malcolm's trip by the fact that the Indian half-breed that she took into the desert where so many strong men have died is Bill Kee, Scotty's friend. This Indian is a good guide."

THE MENDING OF A VOICE.

BY EDGAR WHITE.

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Following the custom of the day, the minister had written a play. Being a clergyman, he had chosen a religious subject. Before entering upon his task he had read diligently. With the production of the drama, fame had come. There were Roman senators and soldiers, kings and queens who were bad, and a Magdalen who was good. The playwright had mined through the substratum and worked his way to daylight. Out of hideous crime and debauchery had come the triumph of faith, and a better life. The prelate author had sought to teach a wholesome lesson, for he placed his part in the redemption of mankind above earthly glory. Unnoticed save by the critical eye of the man of cloth was one weak part in the cast. A young woman of rare beauty and grace could not bring to her lines the proper cadence. The marble columns at the entrance of the king's castle were no whiter than her soul. Yet the grand, melodious chord deep in her heart had never been touched, and until vibrated by the invisible hand, which sears with the white brand of human woe, the intonations given the sacred lines sounded like sacrilege to the sensitive author.

The minister had a son attending college. During the Christmas holidays he joined his parents in the city where "The Trinity of the Cross" was being presented. The boy was strong, handsome, manly—like his father. He mingled with the players, who became much attached to him. He was enthusiastic over the play, and told the "governor" he was proud of him. If he observed the "blow-hole" in the cast he did not speak of it. From his point of view everything was perfect. There were delightful little suppers after the show, in which he acted as host and general good fellow. He was an only son, and the ground he trod was sacred to his worshiping parents. In no respect had they ever censured his conduct, and they gave to him sublime credit for an honorable philosophy of life.

The student had not been back to his books three months when the playwright detected an improvement in the dilette's voice.

"Good girl!" he said to her one day; "I knew you could reach it if you tried."

The little actress smiled queerly, and expressed herself as gratified to learn she was pleasing him better.

One night the minister's wife went to the actress' room without knocking, and found her lying face down on the bed, crying. On the dresser was a small photograph of Wendell, the minister's son, which the mother recognized before she tiptoed out of the room. By the kinship of womanhood she understood.

In response to an urgent wire from his father, Wendell hastened to him. The minister met his son at the station.

"Anything wrong, father?" asked the bright-faced boy, anxiously. "Is mother well?"

"We are all well, but I have made a few changes in the play and I wished to get your opinion about them. I want you to go to the theater to-night in disguise. I don't want you to recognize a member of the cast, nor do I wish you to be recognized. I think your views of these changes would be better if you made your observations purely from your own standpoint."

"I understand, and appreciate the honor, sir."

Wendell occupied a box with some press critics, and pretended to take notes of the play.

It was a land wherein no church spire pointed the way to the living God. A heathen court was issuing hideous decrees against the followers of the Nazarene. The white-robed martyrs of the arena knelt in prayer as they awaited the signal from the human tigers in the royal podium to release the four-footed tigers in the cages.

"I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."

A girl with wavy chestnut hair, and a marble white face, reverentially repeated the promise of Holy Writ, as the chains crashed to the floor and the monsters from the Euphrates leaped out. Her arms were around the trembling shoulders of a younger sister, whom she was trying to comfort.

"And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die!"

In the solemn hush preceding the tragedy the tender voice of the comforter vibrated with the celestial melody of the dawning transfiguration. She looked over and beyond the blazing eyes and cavernous jaws approaching her.

"Unto Thee, my Lord and my Redeemer—"

The hot-mouthed beasts were now among the sacrifices, and the tumult of ferocity and agony was on. From the podium voluptuous women and half-drunken courtiers smiled interestedly, and voiced no sentiment of compassion. The curtain fell on the shambles.

"Do you think it is an improvement?" asked the author of his son, as they seated themselves in a cafe near the theater.

"She is superb!" exclaimed the boy, enthusiastically.

The minister regarded him curiously.

"I wanted to know what you thought about the change of lines in the trial scene?" he said.

"Oh! Why, I—I don't believe I noticed that," returned Wendell, with hesitation. "What were the changes?"

"If you didn't detect them, I'm afraid it would not interest you to relate them now. In the revised version the lines of counsel for the denounced are strengthened."

"I observed that Norton had more to say, and that he did fine; but what interested me most was the power of Miss Carroll in the arena scene."

"Her lines are the same as when you saw her first."

"I know, but she is reciting them in a different way. Before I thought she was perfect. Her work to-night was more; it was an inspiration."

"You are enthusiastic."

"Don't you agree with me, sir?"

The minister meditatively balanced his fork on the edge of the plate.

"Miss Carroll is improving," he said. "I'm sorry we're going to lose her."

"Lose her! How?"

The father did not notice the vehemence of the exclamation.

"Her widowed mother lives in New Orleans, and is lonely. Miss Carroll feels that she must go to her."

A week later, shortly after the porter had made his stentorian announcement of the approaching hour for the Iron Mountain's night train to depart southward, a young woman, heavily veiled and attired for traveling, tripped lightly down the winding stairs into the office. She was immediately joined by a young man who had been waiting at the foot of the staircase.

"The reckoning is made," he whispered, "and our suit-cases are in the carriage, which is waiting at the side entrance."

She took his arm and they started down a small corridor. A man was standing at the door of the carriage, but it wasn't the coachman. The young man thought it was.

"Please open the door," he said.

The man suddenly raised his hat from his eyes, and threw open his coat. It was the author of "The Trinity of the Cross."

"Father!" gasped the young man.

"I'm ashamed of you, sir!" said the minister, severely.

"I know—I know it was wrong," said Wendell, nervously, "but I couldn't help it. I love her so!"

The girl at his side repaid him with a tender look from two lustrous blue eyes, which even the heavy veil could not wholly hide.

"Of course you do," said the father, with astounding acquiescence; "that's not what I'm mortified about; it's you people running off after another minister when I'm in the marrying business myself—I mean when I can get a job of the sort. Now, you two run back upstairs, and to-morrow we'll have a nice little comedy-drama on the side, and I'll see to it that Caesar and his whole profligate court attends to do you honor!"

MODEL.

Rosebud (to Mrs. Biggs, who has just purchased Paris model)—Fit you, my dear? Why, that Paris dressmaker might have taken your measurements for it.

Mrs. Biggs—Kind of you to say so, dear; but, of course, utterly impossible.

Rosebud—Oh, of course; utterly! I can see that, dear.

SOME VEGETABLE DISHES.

Vegetable Salads Very Appetizing This Time of Year—The Value of Carrots.

I have lately noted an especially dainty salad that looks very appetizing these spring days: Cook some tips of asparagus, some string beans and a carrot, boiling each until quite tender in salted water; have the beans in 2-inch lengths and cut into slender strips; the asparagus stalks may be used for soup, as only the extreme tips are nice in this salad. Chill a couple of tomatoes and some of the small spring onions called shallots; these must be carefully peeled and then cut into inch lengths. Place a leaf of lettuce on a salad plate and lay the asparagus tips in a little pile at one side, a slice or two of tomato and a little heap of the beans on the other; wash and cut a couple of new radishes into rounds and lay them in another small heap next the beans. Serve very cold with French dressing, and the salad will be found delicious.

It is a pity carrots are not better liked; they are both cheap and wholesome, something that can not be said of many eatables. They should not be peeled, but well washed and scraped; put on in boiling salted water and cook until perfectly tender; but they should not cook to a mushy condition; drain and they may then be served whole in a plain white sauce, or be sliced lengthwise and dipped in batter, then fried a nice brown in very hot fat. Carrots are excellent boiled, mashed, seasoned with plenty of butter and salt and pepper, a little milk added and baked like mashed potatoes. They flavor soups and stews better than any other vegetable and should be used plentifully at this season.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

HOW TO BUY GLOVES.

Try Glove to See If Elastic, and a Fragrance Like Russia-Leather Good Sign.

Many women buy their gloves carelessly. They do not examine the glove, and later find to their sorrow that the glove that seemed pretty and effective off the hand is badly made and of poor material.

"In selecting a pair of gloves," said a glove salesman, "the best plan is to test the kid by stretching it. Take the side seams between the thumbs and fingers and pull. If the kid is soft and pliable, the pores small, even and not specially noticeable and the glove immediately takes on its original shape, it gives evidence of not only being elastic, and therefore full of new life, but of being of a fairly good quality. The heavy walking gloves can be tried in the same way, but as sure a test as any is in smelling them, and if there is a rather fragrant odor like that of Russian leather, they, too, should be all right. The stitching in the seams should all be carefully examined to see that it is perfect and that there are none sewed so close to the edges that they will tear out. If well made they should have a small gore between each of the fingers."—Chicago News.

FASHION NOTES.

The newest rare and motor wraps are made of dyed shantung silks.

White cloth of the most supple make and trimmed with Venice or Irish lace has been adapted for dinner gowns.

A novelty material is a very fine reseda mixture with orange pin-stripe running through it.

There are many new cloths shown this season, though the plain chiffon broadcloths are in the vanguard of fashion.

Both the water-blue and natural shantung silk are being utilized for simple short waists with soft cambric embroidered turn-down collar and cuffs.

Some of the summer white embroidered gowns, inset with insertions of Valenciennes, flounces and medallions, are veritable works of art, and costly withal.

Paris has declared that white is still to be first favorite; and then, with the charming inconsistency for which she is famous, has sent over fascinating muslins, with the color note contrived by means of embroidery, in true French blue, which shares honors with the embroidery done in white, the two being on the same piece.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Rhubarb Charlotte.

Butter a pudding dish thickly and line with strips of bread cut one inch wide and half an inch thick. Fill the dish with alternate layers of rhubarb cut in small pieces and very thin little slices of bread well buttered. Sprinkle the rhubarb layers thickly with sugar. Make the top layer of bread, cover closely and bake three hours in a slow oven. Take out of the oven and let stand half an hour, then turn on to a plate. The charlotte ought to keep the shape of the baking dish. Serve with a hard sauce.

Date Pie.

Soak one-half pound of dates in three cupfuls of milk for half an hour, then set where they will heat but not cook. When hot, press through a strainer, cool partly, and fill a plate lined with rich paste. Bake and cover with a deep meringue made from the whites of two eggs beaten with one-quarter cupful of powdered sugar.

Winter Beverage.

Three out of every five pounds of tea used in this country are consumed in autumn and winter.

THE FLOWER GARDEN.

Old Favorites Should Do Well with Attention to a Few Conditions—A List Given.

Among the flowers that are old standbys for the summer garden are asters, sweet peas, nasturtiums, poppy, phlox, castor plant and sunflower. Asters should be planted in boxes in March and transplanted in the garden in May. The nasturtiums and sweet peas should have poultry netting held in place by stakes to vine on. With the exception of the aster, these flowers should be sown the last of April.

You can depend on these flowers every time if you give them a good soil to grow in and keep the weeds away from them. If prevented from ripening seed by gathering the flowers as fast as they appear, they will come into bloom early in the season and produce flowers well up to the frost time.

The old-fashioned sunflower can be used to advantage, and to give the garden a tropical effect the reclinor castor plant with its palmate leaves is strikingly effective.

The castor plant and sunflower should be used as a background for the garden, and should be planted on the four sides of the garden and next to the fence, and the space of from three to four feet of the fence should be filled in with the asters, sweet peas, poppies, nasturtiums and phlox.—Orange Judd Farmer.

THE NEW WASH-FROCKS.

We Have a Return of "Sprigged Muslins" and of the Quaint Styles of Long Ago.

Among the perfectly new kinks for wash frocks is the use of the old flowered French taffeta—wash cottons—and figured calicoes so highly finished that they have the look of damask. Plain materials in the same weaves are employed to trim these, but the solid decoration is very spare. One such imported gown seen owned the charming title of costume bergere (shepherdess' dress). French calico was said to be the material, but the effect was like that of a toilet upon a Watteau fan. Upon a damasked white background were small bouquets of naturally tinted field flowers, tied with live knot ribbons in pale blue. This formed the upper dress, which was in a species of polonaise with faintly defined panners and a square neck and flounced elbow sleeves. The lower skirt was of plain blue calico finely kilted and made decidedly short, and with this ravishing toilet went a high gumpe and long undersleeves of embroidered white muslin.

Great stress is laid upon the style of the gloves for entire wash gowns. French authorities declare kid to be entirely out of place.—Washington Star.

GOOD FRUIT MERINGUES.

These Are Very Delicate and a Nice Dessert for Luncheon or a High Tea.

Fruit meringues are so delicious and so easily made that it is a pity they are not oftener seen on our tables. Make a nice puff paste; line a pie-plate with it, about a quarter of an inch thick. Bake these shells in the oven, and prick them if they rise too much. Be very careful in lining the pie-plate to have the paste "fulled" on, so it will not shrink away in baking. When the pastry shells are done, let cool, and fill them with rich apple sauce, stewed and sweetened and flavored; or fill them with canned peaches sliced and sweetened; or with quince, or other marmalade, or jelly or jam. Cover each pie with a thick meringue made by beating the whites of two eggs to a stiff froth, adding gradually while beating two tablespoonfuls of pulverized sugar and the juice of one lemon. Return the pie to the oven, where the heat should be gentle, and cook the meringue slowly until it is a firm, light brown, and it will not fall when cold.—The Commoner.

Care of Shoes.

Boots and shoe trees are all very well if they can be afforded, but a set of them to accommodate the footgear of the average well-dressed woman represents quite a considerable expenditure. Tissue paper crushed and packed in the shoe answers every purpose of keeping it in shape and costs almost nothing. Patent leather shoes need special care to preserve them in good condition. When they are fresh and new they may be wiped over after every wearing with a soft linen cloth, and set in a closet that is not too cold nor too warm. Extremes of temperature injure the leather. As the shoes begin to show signs of wear they should be washed with a sponge dipped in lukewarm water, and after being carefully dried, be lightly brushed over with a patent-leather varnish sold for the purpose and applied with a camel's-hair brush.

Not Obtrusive.

An authority on such subjects once said that the moment a picture frame becomes noticeable something was wrong with it. This fact is so evidently true that even those of us who have no artistic education feel the incongruity of some things without knowing just what to say, or why, and it takes but a hint to open our eyes to certain points we had never thought about.

Short-Lived.

Good intentions rarely survive the headache that actuates them.

BRYAN, TEXAS, JUNE 17, 1906.

Many eyes are on Bryan watching to see what she is going to do with the trolley line problem.

Yesterday closed the lists of applications for office subject to the democratic primaries throughout the state, according to the provisions of the Terrell election law. The primaries will be held July 28.

The city of Bryan is again after that trolley line to the A. and M. College. She will get it—Bryan never goes after anything that she does not succeed in getting. That town can show as many good results from the get-up-and-hustle spirit as any place in Texas, and is a splendid object lesson of the benefits to be derived from enterprise and progress.—Madisonville Meteor.

Henry Watterson in the Courier-Journal, under the caption, "Hurrah for Bryan," comes out squarely for the Nebraskan as the logical and legitimate candidate of the democratic party for the presidency in 1908, saying that there is good reason to believe that "long before the assembling of the national democratic convention of 1908 William Jennings Bryan will be put in nomination by states enough in their separate and several conventions to leave to the larger body only the business of confirming an agreed candidate, the selection of his yoke-mate and the building of a platform."

FOSTER'S WEATHER BULLETIN.

(Copyrighted 1906, by W. T. Foster.)

NOTE.—My "Crop Weather" forecasts for 1906 are now complete, are of unusual interest, are the best I have ever made and a sample of them will be mailed to anyone on receipt of a two-cent stamp. Address W. T. FOSTER, Washington, D. C., Box 11.

Washington, D. C. June 16.—Last bulletin gave forecast of disturbance to cross continent 16 to 20, warm wave 15 to 19, cool wave 18 to 22. Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about 20; cross west of Rockies country by close of 21, great central valleys 22 to 24, eastern states 25. Warm wave will cross west of Rockies about 20, great central valleys 22, eastern states 24. Cool wave will cross west of Rockies about 23, great central valleys, 25, eastern states 27.

This disturbance will come at the close of a long cool period, at the close of the spring rains and at the beginning of a summer drouth in the northwestern and southwestern states. Low temperatures will precede and follow the low of this disturbance and its warm wave will not bring very high temperatures. When the cool wave following has passed eastward a great high temperature wave will come in.

This storm wave will not be severe in the west, but after it has passed east of Meridian 90 all its features will become more intense. Usually cool weather is expected 16 to 26.

The northwestern potato crop had a bad start; too much rain. The finest potatoes produced came from Minnesota, the Dakotas and northward. The summer drouth will probably add more injury to the potato crop and this will make a demand for the Colorado irrigated potato. In quality the latter stands next to the Minnesota and Dakota potatoes.

The spring wheat crop is still in doubt; it had a bad start. Northwestern flax was injured by excessive rains and the summer drouth is before it. Where the recent rains have been most excessive the drouth will be most severe.

Tice theory of expansions and contractions of the great permanent high and low barometers as the cause of our weather changes. Later it was announced that Chief Moore would rely on Prof. Langley's theory that the sun's heat varies. Both these theories the latter as the cause—may be used. Chief Moore has not yet given out the particulars. All the weather bureau authorities are looking to the sun as the only cause of our weather fluctuations and it is now clear that the weather bureau officials are formulating a system of long range weather forecasts based on those two theories.

Prof. Tice of St. Louis discovered the fluctuations of the permanent barometers as a cause of our weather changes, and Prof. Langley believed that he found the original cause in the variations of sun heat. Prof. Bigelow goes further back and claims that the sun's rotation on its axis in about 27 days is the cause of the fluctuation in the sun's forces and that the latter cause our weather changes. I hope they will get it fixed up and that we may soon be able to compare results as between their system and mine.

Begins Monday, June 18th, at 8 o'clock

Don't miss this excellent opportunity to buy a Summer suit just at the beginning of the hot weather at a wonderful saving in price. Remember every suit in our store, except blacks and blues, is included in this sale; nothing reserved. We inflate no prices here, every garment in our store is marked in plain figures; you can see exactly what it sold for.

Naturally we have a larger stock of odds and ends in Men's Fine Suits on hand than in former seasons. This is to your advantage, not ours. First, you have a much larger assortment to select from and second you have a longer time to wear your suit, at least four months of summer weather yet to come.

We offer you the following big reductions during this sale:

Some of the ladies of the city have called the attention of the Eagle to the wanton destruction of birds other than the sparrows, which are rightfully generally regarded as a nuisance. The killing of other harmless birds, including the sweet singing mocking bird, is without excuse and should not be allowed to continue. Boys are often thoughtless in this regard, and the Eagle hopes this reminder inspired by the ladies will be sufficient to check the evil.

Raymond Abney, who has just finished and received his diploma at the A. and M. at Bryan, spent Wednesday in Franklin with his parents. He left Wednesday night for Raine, Ala., where he has accepted a position on the surveying of a new railroad. Raymond was selected from a class of forty-eight boys and given this position, and his many friends are very proud of his record.—Franklin Central Texan.

Mr. W. J. Walker has completed the scholastic census of the city of Bryan, and his report shows the following figures: White males 296; white females, 275; total white, 571; colored males, 290; colored females, 314; total colored, 604; grand total, 1175. The report further shows an increase 25 whites and 19 colored over last year, the total increase being 44.

Miss May Burtis of Bryan, formerly of this city, is right up among the leaders in the Houston Post's contest for a free trip to Colorado, also $50 in money and a lady companion. Miss May is a deserving girl, and the Meteor again calls upon her many friends in Madison county to exert themselves in her behalf.—Madisonville Meteor.

SOCIAL and Club Matters

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Webb entertained Friday evening complimentary to Misses Brown, Calhoun and Sewall of Houston, guests of Miss Howell. The guests were entertained on the lawn with a progressive conversation party. Chairs, settees and Japanese lanterns made the velvety grass plat still more attractive. Punch was served by Mesdames W. S. Howell and W. C. Davis. Almond cream with Mareschino cherries and lady fingers were the additional refreshments. Present were Misses Brown, Sewall, Calhoun, Howell, Smith, Thomas, Emily Thomas, Parks, Adams, Aubra Tabor, Frances Fountain, Cavitt, Batte, McInnis, Peale; Messrs. Marshall, Pittuck, Campbell, Farley, Saunders, Howell, Smith, Dunlap, Bradley, Adams, Wilson, Oliver, Cavitt, Chatham, Coulter; Mr. and Mrs. Boatwright, Mr. and Mrs. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Batte, Mr. and Mrs. Law, Mrs. E. W. Sewall, Mrs. W. S. Howell, Jas. H. Webb, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Webb.

Miss Ruby Connelly entertained the Needle Workers Club on Friday afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Connelly, and the young ladies of the club have never had a more enjoyable meeting. Needle work being the purpose of the club, a contest in dressing dolls in the club colors, pink and white, afforded much pleasure and showed the young ladies to be experts in sewing. Misses Frances Chance, Nellie Cole and Gertrude Eaves tied for the first prize and cut for it, Miss Chance being successful. Miss Mary Ross Parker received the consolation prize. Cream and cake were the refreshments. In addition to the club members Misses Gertrude Eaves, Bernice Harris, Lula Bullock and Effie Mitchell were visitors. Mrs. Connelly was assisted in entertaining the young ladies by Miss Mary Kaczer, who acted as judge of the sewing contest and presented the prizes in charming manner.

The most notable of the society events of the past week were the final ball at College on Tuesday evening and the dance at the Elks' club rooms in this city Thursday evening. The final ball, always an event of statewide social interest, on this occasion attracted an unusual number of charming visitors. The large mess hall was fairly crowded for the grand march which was led by Capt. W. P. Burritt of the graduating class and Miss Jessie Harrington of Waco, niece of Dr. and Mrs. Harrington of College. The attendance at the Elks' dance was not so large, but the spacious and airy lodge room was taxed to its full capacity. Mr. Robt. W. Howell of this city and Miss Sallie Sewall of Houston led in the grand march. Splendid music afforded inspiration for the dancers on both occasions, and all the other conditions were favorable.

A most pleasant meeting of L. S. Ross Chapter was held on Friday afternoon, June 15, at the hospitable home of Mrs. F. I. Garth. Attendance of the members was good, with one visitor. After prayer the minutes of last meeting were read and approved. The recording secretary also reported the purchase of a new record book for the chapter. The corresponding secretary read a letter from a Southern lady in New York, desiring our chapter to assist her in getting pupils for a school. After the regular routine of business a plan was formulated to have an entertainment on Friday evening, June 22, for the purpose of adding to the convention fund. The place of next meeting will be announced later.

Indigestion Causes
Catarrh of the Stomach.

For many years it has been supposed that Catarrh of the Stomach caused indigestion and dyspepsia, but the truth is exactly the opposite. Indigestion causes catarrh. Repeated attacks of indigestion inflame the mucous membranes lining the stomach and expose the glands to secrete mucus instead of the juices of natural digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure
relieves all inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the stomach, protects the nerves, and cures bad breath, sour risings, a sense of fullness after eating, indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles.
